UPDATE: Akamai are also looking for US based applicants.

I've recently received an interesting job posting from my contacts at Akamai and am posting it here as it may be of interest to some of you.

While the ad states a location of Munich they are actually trying to fill a couple of positions which can be based in either London, Paris or Munich.

The description in brief: "Flash/Silverlight Senior Solutions Architects are part of the Akamai Professional Services team and work directly with Akamai's clients to deliver Akamai solutions. You will develop advanced Flash, Silverlight and mobile players and applications. This will include preparation of graphics, working with technical project managers and developers for webservice/backend integration, all the way through final delivery of the completed project for release or deployment."
